15 in Heritage Fun Park. Slice of Summer includes Youth Activities that run from 2:00-5:00 pm and Family Activities that run from 5:00-8:00 pm. A highly entertaining performer who sings his songs about exes, breakups, lovers, and more exes, but also has a vast array of tunes from Seger, Petty, Beatles, Taylor Swift, Stapleton, Katy Perry, Dolly, Talking Heads, Waits, Prince, Garth, Musgraves, as well as other assorted Dad-Country! A Montana Legend for sure!

Come and enjoy this wonderful free music provided by Rotary

Slice of Summer started after Broadwater County High School students mentioned in interviews for Rotary scholarships that Townsend needed some summer fun events for families like the Alive at Five event in Helena. If you have any displays, events, or activities you would like to show off at Slice of Summer please let Rotary know. Rotary needs some volunteers to help pull off this great family event. If you can help or if you have any questions, please call Patrick Plantenberg at 431-4615.

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA: Living to Serve

Ashley Sanderson

2024-2025 Broadwater FFA Reportei

Members have made outstanding accomplishments lately, as well as participating in community service. After all, part of our FFA motto is, "Living to serve.". On July 23rd, 2024, our officer team got together to begin sanding and staining a picnic table on the campus of Broadwater High School. While there will be more maintenance needed to get the table in ideal condition, it was a good way for our officer team to bond while also doing a project that will help

I would also like to highlight the accomplishments of FFA members during the Broadwater County Fair this past week. Amanda Pesicka competed in the local rodeo, placing third in pole bending and second in barrel racing. Aiden Kitto won a blue ribbon in showmanship, a blue ribbon for market hog, and a purple ribbon in market hog. Kaitlyn Noyes won Grand Champion Swine Showman, Reserve Champion Market Swine, purple ribbons in market swine and swine showmanship, Reserve Champion Sheep Showman, purple ribbons in market and showmanship, as well as purple ribbons in market and showmanship, and a blue ribbon in market beef. Kaitlyn also made the accomplishment of winning Grand Champion Round Robin Senior Showman.

While Spencer Braaten didn't compete in the Broadwater County Fair, he made some great accomplishments at the state fair in Great Falls. These included Grand Champion Market Hog, Grand Champion Breeding Gilt, 3rd Overall Breeding

Gilt, and Grand Champion Intermediate Showman. I would like to congratulate all members on their achievements this month. Your hard work and dedication really paid off.

Broadwater County Fair Hosts Creativity at Its Best

MT 43 News Staff Reporter

Sounds in the 4-H Building at the Fairgrounds were gently humming like a honeybee hive Wednesday as volunteers worked to organize open class entries for this year's fair.

One of the largest events in Broadwater County's year finds 4-H kids bringing their livestock, leather work and cooking results to compete in the Fair competition. Even adults get involved in the Open Class Entry division of photography, garden produce and scrapbooking. "It is a wonderful time to show off your skills and talents. I encourage everyone to enter the fair. It's fun to share your creativity," according to Tayla Snapp, Open Class Supervisor.

Tayla pointed out as the various division supervisors were setting up quilts and woodwork projects that open class entries are way down again this year. Especially low this year was cooking and garden produce. "We have so much talent in this county. We sure would like people to share those talents and new ideas," she said.

Another unusual quilt entry. Nancy Marks, MT 43 News Photographer

Cowboy Boot Decorating Contest Winner Named at the Fair

MT 43 News Staff Reporter

Robin Folkvord is all smiles with her first- place winner's cowboy boot at the fair on Saturday. Nancy Marks, MT 43 News Photographer

Robin Folkvord won the Cowboy Boot decorating contest at this year's fair. When she saw the theme of cowboy boots and country roots, she immediately thought "My country roots run really deep right here in Broadwater County".

She decorated her own cowboy boot with a dogwood branch to which she attached old photos of her parents, grandparents and greatgrandparents. The decorations included an antique spur and rowel, a piece of her ranch's barbed wire, a rope and some of her handmade jewelry.

Folkvord, is one of the Williams Family of Crow Creek Valley. W.G. "Bill" and LaRee Williams were her parents. Her great-grandfather Tom Williams came to the valley in 1889 from Wales. She lives on Muddy Lane in the valley, graduated from Crow Creek School, and from Broadwater County High School. For the most part, she has lived within 50 miles of Broadwater County her entire life.

Besides being creative she also sings. She Robin, married to Commissioner Darrel played and sang with her siblings for 25 years in the Toston Flats band. She now contents herself with making what she calls "junk art". Darrel chimed in at the interview: "Now she collects a lot of junk for her artistic pieces." Robin was pleasantly surprised to win the contest. "I wish more people would participate in our county fair. We have such an awesome community. We need to embrace that and keep these community traditions like the fair going," she said.

Other winners of the contest include a young girl named Rita Campbell, second place and Deborah Freeman took third place.

The Fair Board would like to thank all people who entered.

baskets, their regular watering and feeding is critical in hot weather – not only for their health in summer but also for a continuously pleasing display through autumn. By mid- to late summer, all of the nutrients will have been taken up or washed out, so some fertiliser sprinkled on the soil and a weekly liquid feed is needed. Insufficient watering may trigger plants to set seed, then curl up and die. If you are going away on vacation, move pots and baskets into a cool, sheltered position and water them thoroughly before you depart. - Brenda Weaver

What Are We Eating?

While trying to cut my sugar consumption, I began to really read the labels of food products. Yikes! Have you ever stopped to read the labels on food? If you have, raise your hand, (HAH got you again I can't see you...or can I?)

Things aren't always what they seem, and I'm not talking about the Government. Did you know years ago when the so-called "Scientists" told us that margarine was way better for you than butter, that they were out right lying to us. (I know big surprise) It was found a few years ago that "butter is natural" AMAZING that it took a scientist to discover that! Also: that Margerine is only one molecule away from being PLASTIC! Wow, talk about an artificial life form we are becoming one.

I went looking for a sugar free breakfast cereal, YEAH RIGHT. Even the plain old flakes, (again NOT talking about our government) are loaded with sugar. I could not find a single sugar free cereal with low to no sugar. The one I finally picked up is Crispix, it's about as low as any. If you want to get a shock, look at most all canned goods. Some of the "Needed" ingredients include good old xanthan gum, high fructose corn syrup (a REALLY Bad Bad) potassium gluconate. And many more weird science experiment-sounding substances. Hmmm maybe the thought of SOMEBODY experimenting on the people of Earth, isn't so far-fetched as it seems.

We all know that in order to bring food to our stores it needs to be preserved and transported across the country to sell. Ok, but why not grow & process the food closer to the people? In the old days there were MORE gardens than today. Gardens where people would bring their food to general stores to sell to their town. Good FRESH food, even the beef/chicken/pork, was butchered locally and sold at market. BUT our learned scientists said, NO, this "fresh" food is bad for us. REALLY? So all the big healthy young folks that were raised on fresh food are wrong? (You know what's coming don't you.) BUZZ, Wrong answer, but thank you for playing.

It seems like certain people who get a bunch of learning, seem to turn it back on itself. "They went to college, so whatever theory they put out MUST be right. A few hundred years of growing and eating our own food must be bad...because THEY, didn't tell us HOW to grow products. (HEAVY SIGH).

I have been stationed places where you might end up eating most anything. However here we should be able to count on our food being at the very least NOT MOVING! Check your labels, IF possible, buy American and enjoy your eating.

RECYCLING

I read an article about recycling this morning and thought of the solid waste and the predicament the county is in right now. I grew up in a town where recycling was mandatory back in the 90s. It clearly is unsustainable in our location but I also do believe some of it falls back on the community to do the right thing.

This article makes it very clear that the perception of the public is wrong and that our public needs to be educated on the truth about solid waste and recycling.

I was always under the impression that recycling was the way of the world and what happens when I put my recyclables in the bin is the right thing to do. Clearly, not all recycling gets a second life as consumer goods.

One thing I think the county needs to look at is what consumer goods can be composted locally and what can realistically be recycled. Then the rest of the cost would need to be shifted to paying for shipping the trash to the best-suited facility to handle it from an environmental perspective. This is something much easier said than done.

I had a vision for my mushroom operation to develop a strain of oyster mushrooms that would consume plastics. There are strains out there that do it. They are in practice in certain places out in Washington but most of the work is in the experimental phases. I know Paul Staments with Fungi Perfecti has been researching this and has had success with the remediation of oil spills and some plastics in landfills. I don't think I'll get to that point but it's something to think about.

Black Butte Copper Mine- Eminent Threat

The Little Belt Mountains in central Montana have been a hunting ground I've utilized for years, offering some of my most memorable days. Reflecting on my time in these mountains, I feel a responsibility to conserve them. The Little Belts provide crucial habitat for elk and deer and serve as a migratory corridor for various

If you've hunted in 416, you know that its blend of public and private and Block Management, makes Forest Service lands incredibly valuable. These access points ensure that hunters like me can continue to enjoy these lands for future generations. However, mining could lead to restricted access for hunters and drive elk away from their natural habitats.

The proposed Black Butte copper mine by Sandfire Resources stands as an eminent threat. Sandfire has quietly accumulated nearly 700 mineral leases on public lands, which will disrupt the habitat and migratory patterns of the wildlife.

I recently signed a petition urging the U.S. Forest Service to initiate a mineral withdrawal on the public lands around the Smith River. This action would temporarily remove federally owned public lands around the Smith from new mining claims to protect cultural, environmental, or recreational values.

It's up to us to conserve our resources. I urge all who value the Smith and the Little Belts to join me in calling on the Forest Service to conserve our public lands by initiating a mineral withdrawal.

FOR THE RECORD

This letter is in reply to the recent article in the paper about the water rate increases in city services.

I served on the Townsend City Council for 18 years, at which time I, along with a few other members, suggested a slight increase in utility fees each year. Our thoughts were that this increase in fees would be used for future replacement costs, which were most likely to happen. This also would have eliminated this huge rate increase that is happening at this time. It was shot down every time by the remaining council and mayor. So please do not put this cost increase burden upon the past council members. Some of us tried to prevent this from happening. Thank you.

Secretary Of State Waiving 2025 Annual Report Fees

Christi Jacobsen Montana Secretary of State

businesses once again.

"The Secretary of State's Office is proud to make it easier to do business in Montana, and we're working daily to assist businesses on their journey," said Secretary Jacobsen. "By cutting and waiving fees, increasing efficiencies, and providing excellent customer service, Montana businesses can focus more on their day-to-day tasks to provide services and products to our communities."

In addition to numerous compliments and gratitude provided by Montana businesses, the state's Legislative Audit Committee also applauded the Secretary of State's Office for continuing to support Montana businesses and finding ways to save them money.

"I would like to say, 'Thank you.' It's great when government can actually work for the people and give the people back their money, or not charge them for something," Senate President and Legislative Audit Committee Chair Jason Ellsworth said during a June meeting. "I encourage the Secretary of State to keep that going, and let's let businesses be businesses in Montana while continuing to save them money."

Since taking office in January 2021, Secretary Jacobsen has cut registration fees in half for new Montana businesses while reducing and eliminating several other fees entirely. Under the leadership of Secretary Jacobsen, Montana has experienced record growth in new business filings in each of the past three years. Nearly 60,000 new businesses registered with the Secretary of State's Office in 2023.

Last year, the Mountain States Policy Center (MSPC) honored Secretary Jacobsen for making it easier to do business in Montana. MSPC recognized Secretary Jacobsen with its Elevation Award, the highest honor of the organization, "given to individual(s) who are committed to advancing and elevating free market principles and ideas. It is presented to a top innovator, business leader, or elected official in Idaho, Montana, and Washington."

"We're grateful for the positive impact our local Montana businesses have on our state," said Secretary Jacobsen, "and the Secretary of State's Office is proud to be a partner to the Montana business community."

"Thank you for doing business in Montana," she added.

The Mission of the Office of the Secretary of State is to protect the integrity of elections, be an asset to businesses and preserve official history.

Large Crew Plants Small Tree

MT 43 News Staff Reporter

The question is: How many Townsend Tree Board members does it take to plant one small tree?

Earlier this month during the cooler weather, Pat Plantenberg and his three-man/woman crew spent about five minutes planting a Pyrus 'Parker' pear tree at a home on River Road. The tree was a replacement for one that had died during the freeze in May, according to the owner.

The original pear tree was one of many trees in the Townsend area that have died due to winter kill and drought. "So many of our trees have also died because of insects and diseases as a result of stress from lack of water along with extreme heat and cold," Pat explained.

Tree Board members Mary Mistek, Pat Plantenberg, Judy Schenk and Martin Mingay plant a small fruit tree as replacement. Nancy Marks, MT 43 News Photographer

Domestic Abuse Support Group Starts Up

Isolation from family and friends. Emotional manipulation to create dependence or fear. Physical and sexual assault. Cutting off access to financial and other resources.

None of these are what one expects to experience in an intimate relationship, but they are the daily reality of victims in abusive relationships. Like Libby Olsen, social and emotional isolation can make those who find themselves in or on the other side of an abusive relationship feel they are the only ones going through the experience. "I needed support," Olsen said, reflecting on leaving her abusive relationship of more than 20 years. "And what better way than to start a support group."

Called Survivors of the Storm, the support group meets Tuesdays at 7 p.m. Locations change to help ensure members' safety. Olsen said she can meet with individuals who want support but can't make the regular meetings.

Olsen emphasized the group does not offer counseling services. Instead, the purpose is to connect with others who have been in or are currently in abusive situations. Both women and men are welcome to participate.

"Everybody in the group has been through this in one way or another," Olsen said.

Despite the gravity of the group's central mission, Olsen said they try to end each meeting on a positive note, asking members, "What did you do for yourself this week?"

Survivors of the Storm also has the support • of the Friendship Center in Helena.

The Friendship Center is a non-profit resource for individuals in abusive and stalking situations, providing around-the-clock emergency assistance, including a women's shelter, for those who need a safe haven. It is the only such resource serving Broadwater, Jefferson, and Lewis and Clark Counties.

According to the U.S. Center for Disease

Control and Prevention, about 41 percent of women and 26 percent of men have experienced intimate partner abuse at some point in their lives. That violence can be deadly: "over half of female homicide victims are killed by a current or former male intimate partner," the CDC reports.

GUEST & DITORIALS

Montana Should Lead the Charge for PTSD Treatments

Post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) is a scary reality facing 13 million Americans, acutely affecting veterans who risked their lives to serve our country and resilient survivors of sexual assault and domestic abuse. Helping these individuals find relief where they can is imperative, and one federal agency is considering action that could do just that.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is set to vote on the approval of MDMA-assisted therapy (MDMA-AT) to treat PTSD in the next few days. Unlike the only two drugs currently on the market to treat this illness that do nothing to actually address the root cause of the disease, MDMA-AT actually has the potential to help patients overcome the root cause of their diagnosis, and it's backed by science.

Every day we wait for MDMA-AT to get approved, another veteran's life is put at risk. Our nation's veterans are experiencing a suicide epidemic with an estimated up to 16,000 veterans currently dying from suicide each year, coming out to a staggering 44 veterans per day. Our veterans cannot wait another day.

During a phase three clinical trial of this innovative for a PTSD diagnosis, and 86 percent experienced clinically significant reductions in their symptoms. These results surpass the efficacy of the only two drugs currently on the market to treat PTSD.

Seven Veterans Affairs (VA) clinics across the country are currently practicing MDMA-AT, with the VA even requesting federally funded studies to test the therapy to treat veteran PTSD.

The FDA has already shown wide support for the drug, including designating it as a "Breakthrough Therapy" in 2017 for its efficacy and granting it "expanded access status" in 2020 so individuals experiencing severe, life-threatening forms of PTSD could be given this treatment by their mental health professional without having to participate in a trial.

Despite the science and the support from the FDA and VA pointing to every reason as to why MDMA-AT should get approval, the FDA's Advisory Committee (AdComm) voted to not recommend approval of MDMA-AT. If the FDA chooses to follow the AdComm's recommendation, ignoring data and their own previous support, it will be the millions of PTSD patients who will have to suffer longer before they can get the treatment they need.

During my work in the Montana legislature and drug, 71 percent of participants no longer qualified with veterans groups across our state, I have been at the forefront of advocating to advance treatments that could help treat PTSD, and with more than 78,000 veterans living just in our state, I have seen firsthand the dire need for more therapies that could get to the root cause of the illness. Action by the FDA to approve MDMA-AT would provide sweeping advancements in this regard.

Science exists to bring great innovations to the forefront to help those who are suffering, which is why it is imperative that the FDA approve this new medical treatment.

Looking beyond Montana, we have strong leadership in Congress, such as Senator Jon Tester who sits as the Chairman of the Senate Committee on Veterans Affairs, who we hope will take the lead on encouraging the FDA to follow the science by voting in favor of MDMA-AT approval.

We would also encourage the Biden Administration to urge the FDA to approve MDMA-AT.

Montanans, like me, will continue to do our part to push for innovative new treatments like MDMA-AT to help patients suffering from PTSD. It is my hope that our partners at the federal level will do the same.

This Is Not Political. It's People's Homes.

Shantil Siaperas

MACo Communications Director

Property taxes aren't red/ blue or political; the State writes the rules on property taxes, counties follow the rules. And everyone—no matter what your political stripe—pays. It's no secret that Missoula County and Beaverhead County are opposite in terms of politics, but we're aligned when it comes to current property tax issues. The Governor sent another letter to all Montana homeowners about property taxes, which has likely hit your mailboxes. The letter asserts that 1.) Property taxes are high because some local governments' spending is out of control; and 2.) The State's haul from property taxes is "small." Both statements are inaccurate and require factual clarification.

First, county spending and county taxation are not the same thing. Yes, counties use property taxes to provide essential services; however, they aren't the sole source of revenue.

For example, counties often receive grants from the federal government to complete large-scale road projects they wouldn't be able to fund otherwise. The counties spend the money from these grants, which will be included in their budgets; however, these are not local property tax dollars.

In fact, two-thirds of Missoula County spending comes from non-property tax dollars. Similarly, Beaverhead County's fiscal year 2023 audit from the MD&A states, "County-wide tax revenue is 34% of the total financial resources, non-tax revenue is 41.5% and 24.5% is cash as of last FY ending balance." Again, total county spending and local property taxes are not the same thing. Saying otherwise is either ignorant or disingenuous. Second, state law caps county property taxation.

Increases are capped to one-half the 3-year average of inflation annually; this is called the "mill cap". Therefore, counties cannot legally do what the Governor is claiming. Your taxes went up way more than one-half the inflationary average due to a combination of three actions/inactions:

The State chose to keep a high residential property tax rate—set in Montana Law—during the last Legislative Session (2023). Prior to the session, the Department of Revenue informed the Legislature a tax rate of 0.94% would keep residential property taxes flat. The State chose to stick with their rate

There were record increases in home values; and Select industries received a tax reduction on the backs of residential property taxpayers: telecoms, railroads, airlines, pipelines, and NorthWestern Energy.

(You paid for your tax increase and their tax break.) When you combine the afore mentioned three factors, your taxes skyrocketed, even though the increase in county tax collections were below the rate of inflation. What Governor Gianforte calls the State's "small portion of property taxes" amounts to a new $81 million for state government. For a Beaverhead County resident outside city limits, the State's "small portion" of property taxes amounts to over 20% of the total tax bill. More drastically, in Gallatin County, the State's "small portion" is more than the entirety of the county portion. A "mill" is a unit of measure for taxation, like how a mile is a unit for distance. However, the dollar value of a mill changes as real estate values change. Because real estate soared last year, mill values soared as well.

Subsequently, counties used fewer mills than they did the previous year. For example, Missoula County lowered the number of mills used, and every one of Beaverhead County's departments with voted mill authority voluntarily took a mill reduction to help offset the increase on tax bills. Counties asked the Governor and State to do the same. The State, however, continued to ask for their full 95 mills, despite the exorbitant mill value. That sky-high mill value brought the State a new $81 million because they wouldn't lower the number of mills they used. Counties did. Yes, the State has the legal authority to access the full 95 mills, but they also have the responsibility NOT TO, especially knowing tax bills would soon

The Governor is right on one thing though: It's time to reform the property tax system.

Family of Alice M. Hall

Like a firefly drifting through the night, it is with wonder and awe that we sadly announce that Alice M. (Johnson) Hall has departed this physical form during the early morning of Sunday, August 4, 2024. Alice survived 84 years, as her last hours of slumber resided at Bee Hive Senior Living Center, in Helena, Montana. Sudden excitement was brought to her and the family as St. Peter's Hospital discovered Alice was suffering from organ failure (cause of death).

Alice was a loving wife of 60 years to her devoted Husband, Maitland P. Hall; a mother of five to William, Ervin, Dotty, David, and Diana; with 10 grand-children, 11 great-grand-children, she lived to see one great-great-grand-child walk this Earth. Alice was a proud homemaker and caregiver. The talents were immediately acknowledged and nurtured by her parents, Albert and Maxine Johnson, at a young age. She loved to embroider, cook, and care for children. She was always proud of encouraging people to get their babies baptized and be of service to the church.

Alice managed to have photos taken with her beloved dog, Uno, just before her birthday this past June. They arrived from print right when she became sick in late July. She arrived back at her home under Hospice care just in time (and coherent) to see the photo(s).

Leavetaking, By Mary Lee Hill "If I should die and leave you here awhile, Be not like others, sore undone, who keep Long vigil by the silent dust and weep. For my sake turn to life and smile, Nerving thy heart and trembling hand to do Something to comfort weaker hearts than thine. Complete these dear unfinished tasks of mine, And I, perchance, may therein comfort you."

Services will be held for her and her husband, Maitland, at 3 pm on August 30, 2024, in the Fort Harrison Veterans Cemetery, with a Celebration of Life to follow at the American Legion Post 2 Reception Hall.

Rodeo Parade One of the Best in Years!

The Boyd Iverson clan has been lining up a rodeo parade in Townsend since 1963. Kathy Iverson Toombs is now the coordinator. She took over registering floats and horse riders from her dad Boyd, in 2000. Sunday she was aided by her daughters, her granddaughter and her great-grandson. She enjoys the work, when it is finished, and feels the parade contributes to the excitement and involvement of the community in Fair and Rodeo weekend events.

This Sunday people lined up early to watch the parade: some were perfectly stationed upstairs at Canyon Ferry Brewery; others carried around drinks – a little hair of the dog that bit them the night before. Families took photos of their children lined up on Broadway waiting for candy and treats from the parade participants.

Exactly at noon, horseback riders carrying the US flag began the parade. Some older folks put their hands over their hearts as it went by. Most people did not. The tradition has changed.

Then came the floats for many of Broadwater County 4-H Clubs, Algeria Shriners in their mini-motor cars, a Science, Technology, Outdoors, Knowledge and Entrepreneurship(S TOKE) float featuring Broadwater Community Theater's upcoming children's play "Fairy Tales Go to Court".

Unique in the parade was "Tools That Won the West" featuring plow shears, animal traps, saddles and scythes. Roy Hankins, who was riding that float, was nearly run over when he tumbled from the wagon. He recovered, unhurt, to ride the entire parade route and won third place for one of the entry categories.

Retired cowboy and rancher Barry White was chosen as Grand Marshall of the parade. He also represents a long-time Broadwater County family. Barry grinned broadly and waved to the crowd in a horse-drawn wagon loaded with his many grandchildren and greatgrandchildren. His daughter, Denise, accompanied him.

Horseback riders, a girl driving a vintage John Deere tractor, first responders and Army National Guard tanks filled in the gaps. Candidates Audrey Plymale and Kelsi Anderson who are vying for the office of Clerk of Court, greeted the crowd with candy and waves.

Suddenly the parade was over. Everyone who attended really enjoyed an hour of fun and received lots of candy. For parade results, see a separate article.

Stock Sale Means Pay Day for 4-H

"Watch that door!" someone shouted as a less-thanbiddable hog tried to break for freedom from the Broadwater County Fairgrounds livestock barn. Frantic 4-H members and leaders coaxed the pig back into its pen with white blocking boards.

Evidently that porker wasn't ready to become someone's breakfast bacon.

A rising early-evening wind kept the dust from settling in the livestock bark at the Broadwater County Fairgrounds Friday evening as 4-H Club members from around the county scurried to groom their market lambs, hogs and steers for the eyes of potential buyers.

"It's not too hard," said Monique Prevel, 12, as she gave her lamb a final brushing before the sale. "It's actually fun."

"I like it," Joe Kirscher Said. "I like the money."

The fair's market livestock sale is a tradition that puts the community in touch with young agriculturalists in the county's 4-H program. The young men and women put significant money, time and worry in their animals. Their hope in the end, at this sale the Friday evening of each fair, is that it will all pay off.

"Sometimes it does; sometimes it doesn't," Prevel said. In her fifth year of raising market lambs, Monique has the basic laws of the livestock market down pat.

"We ask these kids to do what we ask of no one else in the livestock industry to do – raise their animals for one day and one day only," said market livestock judge Marc King of Big Timber.

A grand champion or reserve champion ribbon can add to an animal's value – Jeff Kirksey's reserve champion hog sold for $4 a pound and Emily Wilczek's grand champion hog went for better than standard market price.

But whatever the purchase price, letting go of a market animal isn't always easy.

"Don't ask me about that "said Pager Flynn, tuck

"Don't ask me about that," said Roger Flynn, tucking his head into his folded arms. Roger raised his first market livestock project lamb this year. "Yeah, it's pretty hard".

It wasn't too hard," said Samantha Rauser, 11, who is in her second year of raising market hogs. "At first it kind of got to me, but it was alright when he went."

The best thing about the market sale, Rauser said, was, "I got my own money and could pay my mom back."

Saddle Bronc Rider Wins Big at the Rodeo

On Saturday, August 3rd, local cowboy Colton Haase had a phenomenal second day of rodeo. As a saddle bronc rider, he was able to get 120 total points which helped to secure his two wins in the Townsend Rodeo. Haase felt good about his performance. Although he thinks it could have gone better, he was still able to take the victory over the other competitors. He explains his steps of preparation saying," Mentally is just kind of picturing it. One thing I do a lot is, before I go to bed, is picture it. You know, play a good ride in your mind. Physically get on a good workout plan and stick to it."

Haase later said that the most rewarding part of the rodeos wasn't the money but being able to be a role model and seeing the kids smile.

Rodeo Clown Prepares for a Dangerous Job

Karsyn Sangray

Broadwater High School Reporter

The rodeo would not be complete without the rodeo clown, Joker Jett. From Great Falls, he travels all over the state to different rodeos. From walking along the tops of railings, fishing in a bucket, to hiding in a barrel, the seventeen-year-old never fails to put smiles on the faces of the audience. Going into his eighth year of being a clown he has a very simple routine before each rodeo. Jett says, "I just look at jokes. I write down jokes on the back of programs to help me remember them. Other than that I just paint my face."

Jett does a fantastic job at keeping the crowd engaged and loud. Cracking jokes about fishing is his specialty. Not only does the clown provide comic relief for the audience, he is always attentive and ready to help the cowboys in case of injury. Overall, the National Rodeo Association (NRA) Rodeo concluded successfully without any major injuries reported. The rodeo would not be the same without the dedicated cowboys or the entertainment from the clowns.

Joker Jett gives a thumbs-up during his interview with reporter, Karsyn Sangray. Karsyn Sangray, Photographer
